Jewish Community Services and CHANA

Reducing access to lethal means — especially firearms — can determine whether someone at risk for suicide lives or dies.

This training will enhance participants' ability to:

- Identify people who could benefit from lethal means counseling
- Ask individuals receiving counseling about access to lethal means
- Work with individuals and their families to reduce access to lethal means
- Utilize Maryland's Extreme Risk Protective Order (ERPO) law

General Public - $50.00

Teachers from Jewish Day Schools/JCS Retirees - $40.00

JCS Staff and Associated System Employees – Free
